The Rasmuson Wildlife Conservation Center

at the Theodore Roosevelt Memorial Ranch

THEODORE ROOSEVELT MEMORIAL RANCH

- The 5,500 sq. ft. Center can sleep 32 guests in six bedrooms. Dorm-style bunk beds, 6 beds per room.
- Feed people from the commercial kitchen and seat up to 100 in the main conference/dining room.
- The facility also includes a lab-style classroom for hands-on, practical wildlife conservation related work.
- Shower facilities, utility room with a washer and dryer, dining area, great room, and an outdoor deck surrounding the west end of the conference room with an awe-inspiring view of the Rocky Mountains.
- Wireless high speed Internet, guest telephone, AV system, projector and screen.

The RWCC is an excellent facility for short courses, workshops, seminars and demonstrations about integrated natural resource management, conservation education, and any other outdoors related topics.

The Ranch is located 10 miles west of Dupuyer, Montana, about 2 hours from Great Falls International Airport.

Located in the heart of the Ranch is a Watchable Wildlife Trail about 1.5 miles in total length, which provides a great view of "where the horizontal grasslands and vertical limestone cliffs collide".

The ranch property borders U.S. Forest Service and is only 3 miles from the Bob Marshall Wilderness. Dupuyer Creek and its tributaries also converge on the ranch offering great fly-fishing opportunities for those interested anglers targeting wild and native trout! Deer, elk, bears and many other wildlife species also call the TRM Ranch home.

The only distraction found on the Boone and Crockett Club's working cattle ranch is the breathtaking view of the Rocky Mountain Front.

The Center was constructed to blend into the surrounding landscape, taking advantage of the mountainous and big sky vistas. The building was also designed with a high-efficiency rating due to the strong winds and winter weather.
